VOL. 15

OCTOBER, 1929

No. 10

REVIEW OF THE MONTH

Growth in the volume of reserve bank credit since the early part of August has been in approximately the same volume as has been usual

Changes in reserve bank port-folio—for this season in recent years.

Between the end of July and the end of September the total increase in reserve bank credit outstanding was about $100,000,000, an amount approximately equal to the increase during the period in the demand for currency. The additional demand for reserve bank credit was met through the purchase by the reserve banks of acceptances in the open market. Following upon the reductions in July and August in the buying rates on bills, there was a rapid growth in offerings of acceptances to the reserve banks, and bill holdings of these banks increased by more than $200,000,000 from the first of August to the last of September. There was also a further inflow of about $30,000,000 of gold from abroad, bringing the total additions to the country's stock of monetary gold since the beginning of the year to about $230,000,000. As a result of bill purchases by the reserve banks and the inflow of gold, member banks were in a position to meet the seasonal demands upon them without increasing their borrowings at the reserve banks; in fact, the total of discounts for member banks decreased by about $120,000,000 during August and September. As a consequence, the financial requirements of the crop-moving season have been met with little increase in rates charged to commercial borrowers.

Increased purchases of acceptances by the reserve banks in recent weeks coincided with a growth in the total volume of American bankers' acceptances outstanding, which reached $1,200,000,000 on August 31. This volume, as is shown by the chart, is about $250,000,000 larger than on August 31, 1928, and more than $400,000,000 above the level for the corresponding date in 1927. The greater part of this increase has occurred in dollar acceptances created to finance goods stored in or shipped between foreign countries, which accounted for a total of $315,000,000 at the end of August this year as compared with $152,000,000 and $72,000,000 on the same date in 1928 and 1927, respectively. There has also been an increase as compared with recent years in the volume of bills created to finance export and import transactions and to furnish dollar exchange. Acceptances falling under the latter classification showed the largest relative increase for the year. During previous years the volume of such bills averaged about $25,000,000, but on August 31 of the present year were outstanding in the amount of $63,000,000. The increase in this type of acceptances appears to indicate a growing demand for dollar exchange by such countries, mostly in South America, as are permitted under the provisions of the Federal reserve act and the rulings of the Federal Reserve Board to draw acceptances on American banks for the purpose of obtaining exchange.

The chart indicates that the increase in acceptances outstanding started earlier this year than in the two preceding years and up to the end of August was considerably larger than in those years. It appears, therefore, that dollar exchange has financed a larger proportion of world trade this year than in other recent years, with the consequence that foreign money markets have been relieved of a corresponding demand for credit from this source.

During recent weeks there has also been a growth in loans and investments of member

Growth of member bank credit from banks in leading cities.

The increase was largely in the form of commercial loans, which increased by $240,000,000 between August 7 and September 18, while the banks continued to reduce their holdings of investments, and there was also a slight decrease in loans on securities. The demand for credit from the securities market continued to increase rapidly, and brokers' loans on September 25 were $800,000,000 above their level at the end of July. This growth, however, represented entirely additions to funds loaned in the market by lenders other than domestic banks.

A growth of bank loans for commercial and agricultural purposes is usual at this season

Growth of commercial loans of the year, but this year it has been in somewhat larger volume than in the two preceding years, as is shown by the chart.

The more rapid growth in commercial loans this year than in other recent years may be due in part to an earlier movement of wheat to market and an accumulation at the distributing centers. Marketing of a large carry-over of wheat on farms and of the new crops of winter and spring wheat, at prices generally higher than prevailed a year ago, has been an important factor in the increased demand for commercial loans. The following table, based on price data compiled by the Department of Agriculture combined with estimates of the visible supply, shows for the end of June, July, and August for the three most recent years the value of visible supplies of wheat:

VALUE OF STOCKS OF WHEAT IN CENTRAL MARKETS
End of—
June.....	$37,900,000	$57,500,000	$98,800,000
July.....	52,100,000	69,800,000	185,700,000
August.....	98,100,000	100,400,000	240,500,000

Throughout the summer the value of wheat carried at central markets this year has been much larger than in the two preceding years, and at the end of August the increase over last year amounted to $140,000,000. Earlier marketing of wheat is indicated also by weekly figures of car loadings of grain and grain products.

The cotton crop, which comes to market later than wheat and bulks larger in the total demand for credit in the autumn, is being marketed earlier than last year's late crop, with prices at approximately the same level as a year ago. Ginnings of the new growth prior to September 16 were 3,353,038 bales—852,257 bales more than last year and about the same as in 1927. Stocks of butter and poultry were larger than usual at the end of August. Total value of stocks of 14 agricultural commodities in central markets was $700,000,000 at the end of August, approximately $170,000,000 more than in 1928 and somewhat higher than in any other August in the past six years.

Earlier marketing of principal crops and a consequent larger return to farmers early in Farm income the autumn does not necessarily forecast a larger farm income for the entire crop year, which is determined by total production of crops and animal products and the course of prices during the marketing season. During the past five years the gross returns to farmers from agricultural production, eliminating duplication, have remained relatively constant at between $11,400,000,000 and $12,100,000,000, according to estimates of the Department of Agriculture.

Output of farm products this year appears to be somewhat smaller than last year, while prices are slightly higher. In the table below this year's production of eight major crops is compared with last year's and with the average for 1924-1928:

PRODUCTION OF EIGHT LEADING CROPS

	1929, Sept. 1 estimate	1928	5-year average, 1924-1928
Corn (bushels)	2,456,000,000	2,836,000,000	2,747,000,000
Winter wheat (bushels)	568,000,000	578,000,000	549,000,000
Spring wheat (bushels)	217,000,000	324,000,000	260,000,000
Oats (bushels)	1,205,000,000	1,449,000,000	1,345,000,000
Cotton (bales)	14,825,000	14,478,000	15,028,000
Tame hay (tons)	93,600,000	93,000,000	92,800,000
White potatoes (bushels)	349,000,000	464,000,000	383,000,000
Tobacco (pounds)	1,462,000,000	1,378,000,000	1,331,000,000

The output of corn, spring wheat, oats, and potatoes is smaller this year than in 1928, according to estimate on September 1 by the Department of Agriculture. Prices of grains at the farm have advanced since June and are now substantially above last year. Farm prices of fruits and vegetables, notably potatoes, are also higher than last September. Prices of meat animals averaged during the first eight months of 1929 considerably above the corresponding 1928 period, but in September they were below the unusually high point of September, 1928. Quotations at the farm for cotton and dairy products are not greatly changed from last year.

On the basis of production figures and prevailing prices for the principal crops it would appear that the cash income of farmers from crops for the present season would be slightly higher than last year. Income from livestock raising and animal products during the first eight months of this year has been somewhat larger than a year ago.

There are considerable differences between different sections of the country in respect to this year's returns to farmers. In the corn and winter wheat belt a good wheat crop at slightly higher prices and better returns from hog production have resulted in improvement in the situation. In this section, however, there has been a considerable decline in the output of corn. In the spring-wheat region a short crop, even though sold at substantially higher prices, is likely to result in some curtailment of farm income. In the Cotton Belt the prospect is of little change in the general situation, though the drought in Texas has resulted in a reduction of the cotton crop in that region. On the Pacific coast the fruit crops have been small, but prices have advanced.

For the country as a whole, present indications are that there has been no substantial change from last year in the income of farmers, and that the reduction in output of crops has not been reflected in curtailment of purchasing power of agricultural communities.

CONDITION OF ALL BANKS IN THE UNITED STATES ON JUNE 29

Loans and investments of all banks in the United States—including national banks, State commercial banks, trust companies, mutual and stock savings banks, and private banks under State supervision—increased during the year ending June 29, 1929, by $1,209,000,000, or 2 per cent, to the level of $58,474,000,000. The increase for member banks was $650,000,000 and for nonmember banks $559,000,000.

The chart shows the course of loans and investments of all banks, member banks, and nonmember banks since 1919. Current figures are given in detail, by Federal reserve districts and by States, on pages 698-701.

The entire increase in bank loans and investments, both inside and outside the Federal reserve system, was in loans, as is shown by the accompanying table, which gives separate figures for member and nonmember banks. The investment holdings of both classes of banks decreased, those of member banks by 6.6 per cent and those of nonmember banks by 1.9 per cent.

Changes in Foreign Central Bank Discount Rates

The following changes have been made since the 1st of September in the discount rates of central banks in foreign countries: September 2, 1929, Reserve Bank of Peru from 7 to 6 per cent; September 26, Bank of England from 5½ to 6½ per cent; September 27, Danish National Bank, from 5 to 5½ per cent; September 27, Bank of Norway from 5½ to 6 per cent; September 27, Bank of Sweden from 4½ to 5½ per cent; and September 28, Austrian National Bank from 7½ to 8½ per cent.

NATIONAL SUMMARY OF BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Production in basic industries increased somewhat in August as compared with July, but the increase was less than is usual at this season, with the consequence that the board's index of industrial production, which makes allowance for usual seasonal changes, showed a decline. Wholesale prices declined slightly. Credit extended by member banks increased between the middle of August and the middle of September, reflecting chiefly a growth in commercial loans.

Production.—During the month of August there was a reduction in the output of iron and steel and copper and a slight decline in the production of automobiles. Meat-packing establishments were also somewhat less active during the month, while seasonal increases were reported in the production of textiles and shoes, coal and cement, flour and sugar, and petroleum output continued to expand. A slight increase in the number of workers employed in factories was accompanied by a substantial increase in pay rolls. This increase was especially notable in industries manufacturing products for the autumn retail trade, such as clothing and furniture.

For the first two weeks of September reports indicate further decline in steel operations, reduction in lumber output resulting in part from the Labor Day holiday, and a continued seasonal rise in coal production.

In the construction industry contracts awarded in August were 25 per cent less than in July, reflecting a sharp decline in the residential group as well as in contracts for public works and utilities, which were unusually large in July. As compared with last year, contracts were 5 per cent lower in August, but in the first two weeks of September they were in approximately the same volume as in 1928.

The September report of the Department of Agriculture indicates a corn crop of 2,456,000,000 bushels, 13 per cent less than in 1928, and 11 per cent under the 5-year average. The estimated wheat crop of 786,000,000 bushels is substantially below last year, but only slightly less than the 5-year average. Cotton production, estimated on August 1 at 15,543,000 bales, is now expected to total 14,825,000 bales, slightly above last year.

Distribution.—Freight-car loadings increased seasonally in August, as a consequence of larger shipments of all classes of freight except grains, which moved in smaller volume than in July, when shipments of wheat were unusually large. In comparison with 1928, total car loadings showed an increase of 5 per cent.

Sales of department stores in leading cities were larger than in July and about 5 per cent above the total of August, 1928.

Prices.—Wholesale prices showed a slight downward movement in August, according to the index of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics. This reflected chiefly declines in the prices of farm products, especially grains and flour, and livestock and meats. Woolens and worsteds also decreased in price, while raw silk prices were higher. There was a decline in prices of iron and steel and automobiles and a further decrease in prices of petroleum and its products, especially gasoline. Coal prices advanced during the month.

In the middle of September the prices of grains, beef, raw sugar, silk, and coal were higher than at the end of August, while prices of hogs, pork, and cotton were somewhat lower.

Bank credit.—Between the middle of August and the middle of September there was a further rapid increase in loans for commercial and agricultural purposes at member banks in leading cities. Security loans also increased, while investments continued to decline.

During the first half of September the volume of reserve bank credit outstanding was about $120,000,000 larger than in the middle of the year. The increase was for the most part in the reserve banks' acceptance holdings and reflected chiefly growth in the demand for currency, partly seasonal in character. Discounts for member banks, following the increase over the holiday period early in September, declined at the time of the Treasury financial operations around the middle of the month, and on September 18 were at a lower level than at any time since last June.

Open-market rates on prime commercial paper increased from a range of 6-6½ to a prevailing level of 6½ during the second week in September, while acceptance rates remained unchanged.

* Preliminary.

† Revised.

NOTE.—These tables contain, for certain months, index numbers of industrial production, together with group indexes for important components. The combined index of industrial production is computed from figures for 60 statistical series, 52 of manufactures, and 8 of minerals. Adjustments have been made in the different industries for the varying number of working days in each month and for customary seasonal variations, and the individual products and industries have been weighted in accordance with their relative importance. The sources of data and methods of construction were described in the BULLETIN for February and March, 1927. Revisions of figures from 1923 to 1928 were published in the BULLETIN for March, 1929, pp. 192-194.

NOTE.—This table contains for certain months general index numbers of employment and pay rolls, together with group indexes for important industrial components. The general index is a weighted average of relatives for 34 individual industries. The method of construction was described in detail and indexes for the above groups since January, 1919, were published in the BULLETIN for May, 1925. See also p. 668 of BULLETIN for September, 1925, for certain revisions.

<sup>1</sup> Based on noon buying rates for cable transfers in New York as certified to the Treasury by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, in pursuance of the provisions of sec. 522 of the tariff act of 1922. For back figures see BULLETIN for January, 1928, and January, 1929.

<sup>2</sup> The National Bank of Czechoslovakia opened Apr. 1, 1928, under the obligation "to maintain the relation of the Czechoslovak crown to the undepreciated foreign currencies at the level of the last two years." During the period April, 1924, to March, 1928, inclusive, the range of the Czechoslovak crown was between 2.9193 cents and 3.0312 cents; the quotation on Mar. 31, 1928, was 2.9616 cents.

<sup>5</sup> Silver currency. The figure given for parity represents gold value of unit in September, 1929, computed by multiplying silver content of unit by New York average price of silver for September, 1929, which was $0.51364 per fine ounce. On the same basis, parity in September, 1928, for the Chinese-Mexican dollar was 45.45 cents; for the Shanghai tael, 63.14 cents; for the Yuan dollar, 44.95 cents; and for the Hong Kong dollar, 45.12 cents.

NOTE.—These indexes are in most cases published here on their original bases, usually 1913 or 1914, as determined by the various foreign statistical offices which compile the index numbers and furnish them to the Federal Reserve Board. In several cases, however, viz., France, Netherlands, Japan, New Zealand, and South Africa, they have been recomputed from original bases (1901-1910; 1901-1910; October, 1900; 1909-1913, 1910) to a 1913 base. Index numbers of commodity groups for most of the countries are also available in the office of the Division of Research and Statistics and may be had upon request. Further information as to base periods, sources, numbers of commodities, and the period of the month to which the figures refer may be found on pages 769-770 of the BULLETIN for November, 1927.

LAW DEPARTMENT

Foreign branches of State member banks of the Federal Reserve System.

There is published below an opinion rendered recently by the Attorney General of the United States with reference to the establishment of branches in foreign countries by State member banks of the Federal reserve system.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,
WASHINGTON, August 28, 1929.

SIR: I have the honor to comply with your request of June 13, 1929, for an expression of my opinion in regard to the following questions submitted by you:

(1) Whether a State member bank of the Federal reserve system may, since February 25, 1927, establish a branch in a foreign country and continue to hold stock in a Federal reserve bank; and

(2) Whether a State member bank of the Federal reserve system may acquire a branch in a foreign country by consolidating with a State bank which has absorbed or taken over a liquidating national bank having such a foreign branch established since February 25, 1927, in the manner described, and continue to retain stock in the Federal reserve bank.

You state that the Federal Reserve Board is confronted with the question whether a State member bank of the Federal reserve system, since February 25, 1927, may establish a branch in a foreign country, or may acquire a branch which has been established since that date, and at the same time continue to hold stock in a Federal reserve bank. It is further stated that a certain State member bank of the Federal reserve system desires to establish or acquire a branch in a foreign country, and that the bank is authorized under the laws of the State of its organization to establish a foreign branch.

The applicable provision of the Federal reserve act is contained in section 9 thereof, as amended by the act of February 25, 1927, c. 191, 44 Stat. 1224, 1229, which provides:

Any bank incorporated by special law of any State, or organized under the general laws of any State or of the United States, desiring to become a member of the Federal reserve system, may make application to the Federal Reserve Board, under such rules and regulations as it may prescribe, for the right to subscribe to the stock of the Federal reserve bank organized within the district in which the applying bank is located. Such application shall be for the same amount of stock that the applying bank would be required to subscribe to as a national bank. The Federal Reserve Board, subject to the provisions of this act and to such conditions as it may prescribe pursuant thereto may permit the applying bank to become a stockholder of such Federal reserve bank.

Any such State bank which, at the date of the approval of this act, has established and is operating a branch or branches in conformity with the State law, may retain and operate the same while remaining or upon becoming a stockholder of such Federal reserve bank; but no such State bank may retain or acquire stock in a Federal reserve bank except upon relinquishment of any branch or branches established after the date of the approval of this act beyond the limits of the city, town, or village in which the parent bank is situated.

The answers to your questions are found in the construction to be given to the second paragraph of the above-quoted section. If that section has no relation to the establishment of branches in foreign countries by member banks, as contended by attorneys for the applying bank, then the request of the applicant may be granted. However, if the statute means what its language would ordinarily imply, then such State member bank may not now establish a branch, or acquire a branch or branches, established subsequent to February 25, 1927, beyond the limits of the city or town in which the parent bank is situated, and at the same time retain its stock in the Federal reserve bank.

Where the language of a statute is clear and unambiguous, it is the duty of a court to expound the statute as it stands, even if the consequence works a hardship or injustice. United States v. Algar, 152 U. S. 384, 397; Hamilton v. Rathbone, 175 U. S. 414, 421.

In Lake County v. Rollins, 130 U. S. 662, 670, the court said:

* * * where a law is expressed in plain and unambiguous terms, whether those terms are general or limited, the legislature should be intended to mean what they have plainly expressed, and consequently no room is left for construction.

As stated by Mr. Justice Day, speaking for the court, in Adams Express Co. v. Kentucky, 238 U. S. 190, 199:

It is elementary that the first resort, with a view to ascertaining the meaning of a statute, is to the language used. If that is plain there is an end to construction and the statute is to be taken to mean what it says.

The language of the second paragraph of section 9 of the Federal reserve act, as amended, supra, is plain and unambiguous, and under accepted rules of statutory construction it must be taken to mean what it says, that is, to restrict State member banks in the establishment of branches to the limits of the city, town, or village in which the parent bank is situated.

Section 7 of the McFadden Banking Act amending section 5155 of the Revised Statutes, relating to branches of national banks, contained the following:

(f) The term "branch" as used in this section shall be held to include any branch bank, branch office, branch agency, additional office, or any branch place of business located in any State or Territory of the United States or in the District of Columbia at which deposits are received, or checks paid, or money lent.

It has been contended that this section shows that in dealing with branch banks Congress had in mind only branches or places within the United States, but the underlying words show that the subdivision only dealt with the word "branch" as used in that section and not as used elsewhere.

It is apparent also from the terms of the act of February 25, 1927, supra, that Congress did consider the question of the establishment of foreign branches because section 7(g) of that act provides:

This section shall not be construed to amend or repeal section 25 of the Federal reserve act, as amended, authorizing the establishment by national banking associations of branches in foreign countries, or dependencies, or insular possessions of the United States.

Congress made no such specific exception in respect to State member banks.

Section 9 of bill H. R. 2, 69th Congress, 1st session, known as the McFadden bill, which subsequently became the act of February 25, 1927, as it passed the House of Representatives, contained an additional paragraph defining the term "branch or branches" as not including "any branch established in a foreign country or dependency or insular possession of the United States." This paragraph was stricken from the bill by the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency and the statute as finally enacted contained only the above-quoted exception respecting national banks. The rejection by Congress of a specific provision contained in the act as originally reported suggests that the act should not be so construed as in effect to include that provision. Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. International Coal Mining Co., 230 U. S. 184, 198.

In your second question you request to be advised whether a State member bank may acquire a branch established in a foreign country since February 25, 1927, by consolidating with a State bank which has absorbed or taken over a liquidating national bank having such foreign branch. To answer that question in the affirmative would be to hold that a State member bank may do indirectly that which it may not do directly. Section 9 of the Federal reserve act prohibits such bank from acquiring or retaining stock in a Federal reserve bank if it should establish or acquire a foreign branch which has been established subsequent to the date of said act. It is immaterial how the foreign branch is acquired. To acquire one by acquiring the assets of a national bank with a foreign branch is as much within the ban of the statute as if any other method of acquisition were used.

It has also been urged that Congress could not have intended to discriminate against State member banks by denying them what is allowed to national banks, and that no reason for such discrimination is apparent.

Section 25 of the Federal reserve act places limitations and conditions on the right of national banks to establish foreign branches, and to have allowed State member banks to establish foreign branches, subject only to the provisions of State laws under which they are organized, might have seemed to Congress objectionable. But, however that may be, the words of the statute are explicit, and if any oversight or mistake occurred in framing it, Congress must be looked to for amendment. We can not disregard its plain provisions.

I have the honor to advise you, therefore, that both of your questions must be answered in the negative.

Respectfully,

(s) WILLIAM D. MITCHELL,
Attorney General.

The honorable the SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

Back figures.—See Tables 89-91, Annual Report of Federal Reserve Board for 1928.
